Section 15A
Regional Commission

Overview

15A.1 The Economic Commission for Africa (ECA) was established by Economic and Social Council resolution 671 (XXV) of 25 April 1958 and is a subsidiary body of the Council. The main objective of the Commission is to initiate and facilitate concerted action for the economic and social development of African countries.

15A.2 Providing active support to its member States both in articulating strategies for socio-economic transformation and translating commitments into effective policy actions, has been an important part of the Commission's effort to foster socio-economic development in the region. The Commission had, in this regard, assisted member States in the articulation of common positions in preparation of global conferences or in implementing the ones adopted previously. Thus in the 1994-1995 biennium, the Commission facilitated the adoption of an African common position on social and human development as the region's input to the World Summit for Social Development; and the African Platform of Action for Women as an input to the Fourth World Conference on Women. The Commission had also facilitated the adoption of the Dakar/Ngor Declaration on Population, Family and Sustainable Development as the region's input to the International Conference on Population and Development. It has also initiated preparations at the regional level of the Second United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, with the adoption of a common African position as an input to the global preparatory process.

15A.3 At the same time, the Commission has been actively involved in promoting the implementation of the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s, the Second United Nations Transport and Communications Decade in Africa, the Second Industrial Development Decade for Africa, the Addis Ababa Plan of Action for Statistical Development in Africa and Agenda 21 on Environment and Development. The Commission has also participated in the implementation of the Abuja Treaty establishing the African Economic Community, in particular through support for the preparation of the protocols dealing with various aspects of the Treaty.

15A.4 Against this background, the salient feature of the 1996-1997 work programme is to assist member States both to consolidate the reforms they have begun and increase support for the implementation of existing plans and strategies through a mix of policy advice, technical assistance and analytical research. The common thread that will run through assistance to member States is strengthening their critical capacities for development, which are defined as encompassing the human, institutional and infrastructural dimensions.

15A.5 Capacity-building has been an important activity of the Commission. The renewed impetus for capacity-building draws its inspiration from the strategic objectives for Africa's development recently established for the Commission, and also from the realization that capacity-building is a complex process that requires a long gestation period. As recognition has grown about the scale and complexity of the development challenges that African countries confront, consensus has evolved about the importance of building and sustaining critical capacities to promote socio-economic development and transformation. Yet it is fully recognized that there are significant intercountry differences in capacity-building and utilization in Africa.

As such, the specific forms of intervention to be used by the Commission in support of development efforts of member States will vary according to country contexts and the policy issues being addressed.

15A.6 In preparing the 1996-1997 work programme, the recommendations that emerged from internal and external management reports on the various aspects of the Commission's work in the preceding bienniums have been taken into account. An important step being taken in this regard is the reorganization of the structure of the secretariat in the course of 1995, which aims at improved implementation of the programme of work in an integrated manner. The reorganization will strengthen the capacity of the secretariat to carry out its activities, which have become increasingly multisectoral in nature. As a result, a great number of the substantive activities under each of the subprogrammes will be carried out by task forces involving more than one organizational unit. This will ensure full use of complementarity and increased effectiveness. In order to reflect the changes in the new approach to programme implementation, a number of posts are proposed for redeployment between subprogrammes as well as to programme support in order to strengthen the Commission's capacity to provide administrative services efficiently.

15A.14 The Executive Secretary provides overall direction and leadership necessary for facilitating the integrated management of the programme of work of the Commission, including policy analysis, programme planning, budgeting, monitoring and evaluation. The Office of the Executive Secretary comprises his immediate staff, including the Deputy Executive Secretary, the Policy and Programme Coordination Office and the newly created unit for interorganizational and inter-agency affairs.

15A.15 The Office organizes and services meetings of policy-making organs and other high-level meetings of the Commission. It prepares parliamentary reports to policy-making organs on (a) development issues of interest to member States; (b) follow-up actions on relevant resolutions adopted by the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly pertaining to Africa; (c) follow-up actions on resolutions adopted by the ECA Conference of Ministers; (d) issues arising from meetings of subsidiary organs and sectoral bodies of the Commission and calling for action by the ECA Conference of Ministers; (e) proposed modifications to the 1996-1997 programme of work and priorities; (f) proposed programme of work and priorities for the biennium 1998-1999; (g) proposed medium-term plan for 1998-2001; (h) evaluation of programmes at ECA; (i) reports to the intergovernmental committees of experts of the MULPOCs on the work programme and priorities for the biennium 1998-1999; (j) reports on the activities of the Multidisciplinary Regional Advisory Group; (k) reports to the 1996 and 1997 sessions of the Council of Ministers and Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity (OAU).

15A.16 The additional activities incorporated under the Office of the Executive Secretary are consistent with the streamlined secretariat structure, which is intended to ensure a more integrated functioning of the Commission in dealing with various aspects of African development. In view of the multidisciplinary nature of some activities, more than one organizational unit of the Commission will be involved in their implementation, thus entailing increased involvement of the Office of the Executive Secretary, not only in the design, but also in the implementation of some substantive activities.

Resource requirements (at current rates)

Posts

15A.17 The estimated requirements of $3,567,800 relate to 16 Professional and 11 General Service (Local level) posts. It is proposed to redeploy one D-1, two P-4 and one P-3 to this Office from Development issues and policies (1 P-4; 1 P-3); Natural resources (1 D-1); and Poverty alleviation through sustainable development (1 P-4). The posts redeployed to this Office are intended to facilitate and strengthen policy design, coordination and implementation of programmes in a more integrated fashion.

Travel on official business

15A.18 An amount of $150,500, representing a decrease of $9,900, would be required for the Executive Secretary and the staff of his Office to attend and participate in meetings within and outside the region, and to consult with Governments and United Nations entities.

15A.19 The programme of work of the Commission is derived from programme 30, Regional cooperation for development in Africa, of the medium-term plan for the period 1992-1997, as revised. The activities to be carried out in 1996-1997 will place special emphasis on the continued promotion of regional cooperation and integration, environmental sustainability, social and human development, acceleration of infrastructural development and industrial transformation, empowerment of women, efficient management of natural resources for development, strengthening of national statistical and information management systems, capacity-building for improved agricultural policy and integration of population factors in development planning. Improving public sector management and supporting private sector development aimed at enabling them to play a catalytic role in realizing the various development priorities of member States will also be key features of the programme.

15A.20 Within the programme of work, the estimated percentage distribution of resources among the subprogrammes would be as follows:

	Regular budget	Extra-budgetary
Subprogramme 1 Development issues and policies	9.6	—

15A.62 The subprogramme will focus on the expansion and efficient utilization of physical and industrial infrastructure essential for sustained economic growth and transformation. Emphasis will be placed on assisting member States in implementing the programmes of the Second Transport and Communications Decade in Africa and the Second Industrial Development Decade for Africa. An important feature of the activities in this subprogramme will be active support and encouragement for increased private sector involvement in the development of infrastructure and the human and technological capacity to operate and maintain economic infrastructure.

15A.63 Efforts will also be made to assess fully and establish the link between science and technology policy and the social and economic policies within African countries. The involvement of national stake-holders in the formulation and implementation of policies will be strengthened.

15A.64 During the 1996-1997 biennium, steps will be taken to giving practical expression to the recommendations made in the earlier bienniums, especially in the areas of linking science and technology to the social and economic imperatives in member States. Special emphasis will be placed on formulating and implementing social and economic policies that are more supportive of capacity-building in science and technology, the formulation of appropriate legislation to implement these policies and the training of entrepreneurs who can take advantage of the existing knowledge in science and technology.

The changes in the staffing table reflect the measures taken to strengthen the capacity of ECA to provide efficient administrative services and to maintain adequately the new conference facilities. The changes relate to the following proposals:

(a) Establishment of two Professional posts of electrical engineer and mechanical engineer at the P-3 level and three General Service (Local level) posts of air-conditioning equipment technician, elevator technician and audio-visual equipment technician to provide for the necessary technical support and maintenance of the new conference facilities;

(b) Redeployment of nine Professional posts from the following subprogrammes: Development issues and policies (1 P-4); Trade, regional economic cooperation and integration (1 P-4; 1 P-3; 1 P-2); Statistics and information systems development (1 P-2); Natural resources (1 P-5 and 1 P-4); Infrastructural and structural development (2 P-3). The need for the redeployment of these posts became apparent from studies and evaluations pointing to the need to strengthen personnel management and financial control as well as the management of technical cooperation activities, in particular revitalization of resources mobilization strategy from traditional and new sources;

(c) Abolition of the two temporary and two General Service (Local level) posts that were approved in relation with construction of conference facilities.

The decrease of $22,600 is due to the abolition of the Construction Unit ($11,200), and reductions in Management of technical cooperation ($11,400).

Contractual services

15A.78 The estimated requirements of $1,261,700 relate to the translators' training programme ($929,000) and the salaries of language teachers ($332,700).
